RoZetta Technology, a leading provider of cloud-based data management and analytic solutions, supported SIX, the global provider of financial information, in launching a new cloud-based tick history data offering for banks and asset managers, leveraging RoZetta's DataHex platform.

The new innovative solution addresses the critical need for banks and asset management firms to access comprehensive market data to support a variety of regulatory and compliance use cases, including post-trade market and trade surveillance monitoring for Market Abuse Regulation (MAR), Suspicious Trading Reporting (STR), MiFID II Best Execution and Transaction Cost Analysis, arrival price benchmarking and market conformity analysis.

Customers of SIX can now receive global tick history data in a number of flexible ways from individual instrument level, to exchange or regional and global data packages. The new offering also offers simple, timely, and cost-effective access, with files delivered shortly after market close or on a customized schedule to end-user preferred destinations including cloud platforms, third-party analytic environments, or via API and SFTP.

"We are delighted to collaborate with SIX. The DataHex platform enables SIX customers to overcome typical vendor cost and delivery challenges for tick history data and demonstrates SIX's focus on bringing modern data offerings to market" added David Sharp, CEO of RoZetta Technology.

"RoZetta has a deep understanding and extensive experience in managing global market and time series data at scale. By implementing their DataHex data management platform for our tick history offering, we are now enabled to streamline operations and accelerate the delivery of new cloud-based historical data content and related services to market." said Henk D'Hoore, Executive Director Product of SIX Financial
